Sit on a few doggles and watch the training wheels fly off.Q: Morphic vs ArcGIS Server javascript WMS layer I'm working with a ArcGIS server (version 9.2.1) and I'm using the javascript API to draw some WMS layers. The problem is, at some points (I'm not sure about which are) the WMS layer just draw the same image (the image, not the information). By playing with the WMS layer a bit, I found out this happens (at least) when I activate the 'Style' feature. Here is the link to my test layer: Is there any difference between using a JS object and using the new "Morphic" when drawing a WMS layer? Update I found that, even when using the Style feature, the result is always the same if I use an object and a canvas instead of a vector layer. A: The problem was that my data source (ArcGIS Server) and the WMS layer were pointing to the same data, using the same parameter (in this case the SWREFE size was 10 meters). The problem disappears when I remove the StyleFeature's projection match and the SWREFE size is 0. Q: Change the background color of the title of a tableview using XIB but not the UITabBarItem I'm using this code in my AppDelegate [self.window setBackgroundColor:[UIColor redColor]]; so that the app changes the color of the background of the app when it first launches, but it doesn't change the color of the title of the navigation bar. How can I make the color of the title of the navigation bar change, but not the navigation bar itself? I'm using a standard navigation controller in XIB. EDIT: Here is what I get if I do [self.window setTitle:@"Different Title"]; EDIT 2: I now know that if I put this code in my AppDelegate

Though I don't know much about cheats, I can definitely agree that a poor internet connection can really take a toll on the game and drive you crazy. If there is a way that I can expand on this, I would be interested to hear. In a single-player game, this might not be that big of an issue, but in a game with multiple players like C&C, you can feel yourself getting left behind during a match. I could not agree more. As a matter of fact, as I became more familiar with these systems, I developed my own make shift cheat. That is right, I find a common corner on the map and make sure the entire computer repair team are there along with my foot. There I wait for the ship to
