Some of the movement can be awkward, but overall a fun game.. This game is lonely, oh so lonely. However with the hopes that other people will play, I recommend it.

- 1) Fun concept
- 2) easy and smooth mechanics
- 3) well designed levels

If you are interested in trying it out, go post on their forum page. I check once or twice a week hoping someone will answer my gameday post.. You are a pidgeon and you poop on things.

10/10. I played this game more often when it was in beta, but now that it's released I do see some definite improvements! It's a very simple game, a good little time waster. The only gripes I have with it is the non-variable jump height and no native controller support. But the game itself is pretty fun and I would recommend it.. It's an excellent tool for learning geography! Includes many fun learning modes, such as exploration and challenge modes. The game even has a multiplayer mode (good job, devs!), although I've yet to test it out.

I also haven't experienced any crashes or even bugs for that matter. The game runs very smoothly. It's even playable with a controller!

You can't really go wrong with the current price either. Easily worth the money if you're even slightly interested in geography and the world in general.

Really fun, it's also like Ib, or Ao Oni. It's a great fun game!. 11 cards to add to your decks as you see fit and every single one adds a lot to the existing gameplay. While I love new characters, this release was quite a pleasant surprise. Give Poppo even MORE options with which to exact her bloody agenda of death and destruction! You know you want to.

I'd also like to note that with this release they updated the base game with new maps, new panels, new field events, and made a few misc interface improvements like arrows to show where each path will take you at junctions. If nothing else buy this to support Fruitbat Factory for their awesome work and for more updates down the line.. I love it! A real improvement compared to A4. The story and art is polished. The map is bigger with various points of interest.

I also like how Jeff listens to each beta-tester and implements player feedback in his future installments. (replaced the new clunky engine with the perfect olden one, brought back the puzzles and polished the game)

What really stands out for me, is the good storytelling. (fan of Geneforge, Avadon and Nethergate)

I'm enjoying every minute in this game. Well worth the price.. i liked this train aolt from the way it moved to te sounds it would be better if it came in GWR colours to fit it the orignal makers of this train. Fun game! Can't wait to play more!. if you have a kid in the house , u should probably buy this game to your kids

Enjoyable but they only creat 4 animal to paint .

THIS GAME IS NOT FOR ADULT!!!. A short, casual little game. Short but entertaining. Suprisingly more difficult than i had expected! Has potential to be a much bigger game.. I didn't expect anything, and I got sleepless nights.. 10V10 would recommend to anyone looking for a cheap game to get MANY hours out of. Never gets old and youll never have to worry about rage quitting. SOOOOO CHHILL...
